Perky song; sociopathic video.

Although wowza, one of the lineup dancers is... ahem.

That was... Special.

I'm pleased that The Music of The South continues to support law, order, and traditional family values. Just like "Convoy" did.

The lettering on the guitar seems a tad disturbing as well...

'...and lust and steam and made of b...' (blood? the angle's a bit too acute to read at about 35-45 seconds in, but the letter after 'b' may be 'l')

"Made of blood and love and hope and lust and steam" are lyrics from their song "Incredible Machine".

Only one? I counted two yowzas, myself. Amazingly, hearing the song with the creeptastic video distracted me from the irritation I generally feel when she hits that pseudo-reggae section of the song.

OK, that was disturbing enough that I want to take apart both the main singer and the guitar player. Slowly. (why, yes, any kind of agency removal makes me very very angry, why do you ask?)
